WHAT WILL JEROME SAY NOW? In his unavailing effort to escape the force of the tes timony which clearly traced the death of James Mc-Auliffe back to the West Forty-seventh street police station District-Attorney Jerome can only cry out that the witnesses are "bums" and ex-convicts.

What will he say now in reply to the clear and convincing analysis of this defense by an able and impartial legal expert in this morning's World.

The conviction of Patrick on the testimony of a selfonfessed murderer is too recent not to have suggested fitself to the mind of the District-Attorney.

He is not ignorant of either the civil or criminal procedure of this State. He knows that in civil proceedings But alas! His horse was numbered conviction for crime does not exclude a witness. He knows that the Penal Code declares that "a person convicted of any crime is notwithstanding a competent wit-

He knows that both Glennon and Bissert were convicted by the sworn testimony of women of the worst reputation.

And yet, knowing the law as he does, he has not only refused to accept the testimony of competent witnesses but has used the power and influence of his office to prewent them from testifying.

What answer will Mr. Jerome make to the charge that if he had had such a mass of testimony against an accused not connected with the police force the testimony would have been laid before the Grand Jury long ago?

What answer will he make to the charge that he has set himself above the law?

Rain in the West .- The arid fields of Kansas and the Southwest have been visited by copious rains just in time to save the crops and also to head off a projected crusade of prayer for rain which was to have been started this week. It is, of course, impossible to prove that the rain was not caused by the announcement of the crusade.

HOLLAND'S DYING QUEEN.

Wilhelmina has been more than Queen. She has been a fine flower of lovely womanhood as well as a pattern monarch. Her death will be a double loss to her people. News. And a pathetic feature of it is that it is the price of the human affection which is every woman's by right of sex, but rarely a queen's because of the considerations of state which make love a secondary consequence in royal ? sadly. "Mighty hard," unions. Her girlish romance of two years ago is now transformed into a tragedy.

To die at twenty-two with so much to live for! "So much to do, so little done!" The girl whom a nation had loved as with one heart had only just become a woman What she was to be as ruler is left unrealized. The promise was great, but the fulfilment is denied the people that had hoped to revere her as monarch also. There was a dignity of character with her beauty, a masculinity of mind that gave expectations of a feminine William of Orange-one showing in time of peace kingly qualities equally helpful to the national greatness.

Harrying the Harriers .- It has needed the intervention of that we are not living in the Garden of Eden, and that a Turkish bath costume is not the proper thing for a Sunday afternoon run through the suburbs. The public has some rights which even the athletic enthusiast must

CELESTIAL SPEED RECORDS.

A California University professor informs the world that the Brooks comet is breaking all celestial speed records. This newcomer among the heavenly bodies was discovered gyrating about the sun only two weeks ago. It now travels four times as fast as the fastest comet previously observed-outclassing all competitors of whom the telescope has ever taken notice. Just how know, but in the automobile parlance of the skies it deserves to be designated as the "White Flyer of the Empyrean."

It must be a consoling reflection to a celestial chauffeur that there is always plenty of room for his bursts of speed. No little boys playing marbles in the street ever impede his progress, nor do thoughtless ladies step care- GARCIA, CAPT. R. D.-who was knight lessly in the way from behind trolley cars. The capture of the unnamed fort of the Moro Sultan Bayan in Mindanao was one of those feats of daring and skill with which the history of our army has made us familiar. onfused in our ideas of the human natomy as the schoolboy who declared mick between the membrain of the dia gram," yet few of us, perhaps, would like to parade our knowledge of physiology, and fewer still have any idea of the vast quantities of blood, oxygen, carbonic gas, &c., dealt with by different organs of the human body in the course of a few hours.

While you have been reading these words about sixteen tumblers of blood have passed through the heart. For time the heart beats a small tumblerful of impure blood is despatched from one of the chambers of the heart lungward, to be purified; at the same time another tumblerful of purified blood system. All that in one beat. And as the heart beats about seventy-two times a minute, it thus deals with about three gallons of blood in that brief space of time. In less than a minute—in less than half a minute-all the blood in your body has passed through the central sumping station, the heart, This explains the necessity for immediate action in case of snake bites. Before one could move many yards in search of aid the poison would have traversed the entire system.

A rather original way of committing suicide would be to cover the body with coating of gelatine. This proceeding would throw the 70,000,000 pores in the skin out of work, with the result that the other organs, strongly resenting this treatment, would shortly cease work. These 70,000,000 openings are always at quare inch of the bcdy. As each tube about a quarter of an inch in length, each individual thus possesses a drainage system of 1,750,000 inches, or about enty-eight miles. And when one is engaged in laborious ork and during hot weather these twenty-eight miles are busy pouring out arge quantities of perspiration varying etween a pint and a quart a day.

It has been estimated that 2,000 people uring a two hours' meeting would give iff seventeen gallons of water by perpiration and from the lungs, and nearly much carbon in the form of carbonic cid as there is in a hundred-weight of

A POLITENESS BOOM.

Since the announcement was published that an old lady had left $1,000 to a newspaper seller who piloted her across the street a strange and novel politeness has been noticeable in London street urchins. Neither can we relieve ourselves of this pressure with impunity. The balloonist discovers that when he ascends to the higher regions. The pressure being relieved, the smaller capillaries
